3 Products to Keep Fido Happy

► By Charlene Arsenault

1 Smile Pretty

Most responsible pet parents pay attention to their dog or cat's health. They bring them to the vet, pay attention to abnormal behavior or physical changes, and make sure they're eating the right diet. But as any veterinarian will tell you, oral care is important, too. Not only is oral care vital to a pet's good health, it's often neglected. While most oral care products require using a toothbrush, TropiClean has introduced a new line of products that help to keep your pet's teeth healthy and clean, without brushing. The Clean Teeth Gel, Water Additive, Dental Treats and fresh mint Foam are all designed to fight dental disease and keep the mouth clean and sparkly. (www.tropiclean.net)

2 Brain Games

Part of a growing collection of canine brain teasers, The Nina Ottosson Dog Finder found some recognition when it was selected by Dog Fancy as one of 16 items to be showcased in its December issue as an "editor's choice." Dog Finder games include "Dog Magic," "Dog Brick," and "Dog Tornado." Suitable for all breeds and sizes, these activity games are designed to keep pooches mentally engaged, all while reinforcing that special canine-human bond. It requires mental and physical dexterity to work through these challenges, but dogs work hard, because there is no better prize than food. (www.companyofanimals.us)

3 Power in the Paws

One in five older dogs suffer from arthritis. To this, Lorraine Watson helps them by providing Power Paws. Watson, the CEO of Woodrow Wear, introduces these socks with non-slip threads made specifically for dogs with hip dysplasia and arthritis. "Power Paws give dogs the power to stand, the power to stop, and the power to go," Watson said. "They have been 100% successful on hundreds of test dogs. Dogs slipping because of dysplasia or slick surfaces is common, yet nothing practical has been invented to help...until now." Power Paws, which were featured in the Academy Awards and American Music Awards gift suites, can be found throughout the country in pet stores. (www.woodrowwear.com)
